Subject: Final response for Chris Roberts' HPNS media query

FYI, the response below was approved by HQ and I sent it to reporter Chris Roberts today.

QUESTION: I wanted to reach out and see what the best way might be to secure documents presented at some ongoing meetings, at which EPA is an attendee, regarding the cleanup. About once a month, the Navy, EPA, and state and local authorities have been meeting at SF City Hall for "Tiger Team" meetings, organized by the SF Mayor's Office. The Navy is presenting updates at these meetings, as does EPA, according to some documents I've been able to retrieve. Wanted to see if I could see what the Navy and the EPA have been presenting. I've asked the Navy as well, but I know that EPA should have these documents, and so I wanted to ask here as well. Will you provide these documents, in electronic format, without the ceremony and headache of a FOIA? Let me know.

ANSWER: The United States Navy (Navy) is the lead agency responsible for the investigation and cleanup of the Hunters Point Naval Shipyard Superfund Site (HPNS). The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and the State of California regulatory agency partners oversee and enforce Navy compliance with the Comprehensive Environmental Response Compensation and Liability Act (commonly called the Superfund law) and other requirements to ensure the cleanup at HPNS protects human health and the environment.

The San Francisco Mayor sometimes invites the Navy to give updates on the site cleanup, and EPA attends when invited to respond to any questions that may arise. The Navy, as the lead on the cleanup, gives presentations at these meetings; please contact the Navy for their documents.

EPA has not given any presentations. However, EPA has distributed copies of the following public documents (see attached) at the meetings:

1. EPA letter to the Navy (dated December 2016)
2. Fact sheet about Parcel A residents (dated October 2016)
3. Fact sheet about Artist Studios and Police Department building (dated October 2016)
4. Brownfields fact sheet (dated February 2017)
5. Brownfields fact sheet – updated (dated June 2017)

Please note that EPA updated the Parcel A fact sheet in July 2017. I can provide that version as well, if you are interested.
